An Open

Secret.

The fact is well understood that the MEXICAN

MUSTANG LINIMENT is

by far the best external known for man or beast.

The reason why becomes an "open secret" when we explain that "Mustang" penetrates skin, flesh and muscle to the very bone, removing all disease and soreness. No other liniment

does this, hence none

other is so largely used or does such worlds of good.

AFTER DINNER.

Persons who suffer from Indigestion can arrest the progress of that painful malady by the use of an after-dinner pill, so composed that it will give tone to the stomach, prevent heartburn, rouse

the liver to healthful action, invigorate

the kidneys, and thus, through the activity of these organs, promote the natural movement of the stomach and bowels.

AYER'S PILLS are so compounded that their action, though mild, effectually produces the above results. They also, in curing Constipation, remove the cause of Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Kidney Disease, Rheumatism, and many other serious ailments.

AYER'S PILLS

contain no mineral nor poisonous substance, and do not gripe unless the bowels are irritated, and even then their influence is healing. To continue their effect in constipated or chronic cases, they need only be taken in diminishing increasing doses. For women, and inhabitants of travel, in spasmodic settlements where physicians are not at hand, they are of inestimable value.

There is hardly a sickness they will not promptly. To young girls just entering womanhood, and to women whose period of maturity is drawing to a close,

Ayer's Pills, in moderate doses, merely sufficient to ensure regular action of the bowels, will be found of Incalculable Value.

SONOMA, FEBRUARY 27, 1886.

Communications upon matters of local or general interest solicited.
Communications designed to call attention to any matter of limited or individual interest will not be inserted, unless paid for as an advertisement.
The author's real name must accompany all communications, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. This rule will not be deviated from.

J. W. MCCARTHY, Supreme Court Clerk, who found it convenient to take a run down to the Sandwich Islands about a month ago, arrived in San Francisco on Monday in charge of an officer. He was released on $3,000 bail shortly after landing. McCarthy puts a bold front on the charges brought against him and claims that, as he never resigned his office and was only absent on a short visit which was not extended beyond the sixty days' limit allowed by law, the Governor had no right to declare the office vacant. This talk sounds all very well, Mac, but the injured innocence "racket" won't work in your case. Public officials with any degree of decency are not in the habit of sneaking off to foreign parts and leaving the affairs of their office in such a deplorable state as yours was found to be in, and we fear that little "extradite," which was the means of your return will yet cause a deal of trouble to the McCarthy family.

A DISPATCH from Washington to the "Chronicle," states that a special meeting of the sub-committee of the Ways and Means Committee was held on the 22d inst. for the purpose of considering the proposed law for the taxation of spurious wines. The session lasted three hours, and the whole subject was fully discussed by Mr. Wetmore, after which a forcible appeal for action on behalf of California was made by Representative Henley. Mr. Switzer, representing the New York wine growers, was present and endorsed the proposed legislation. The bill introduced by Mr. Morrow relating to the fortification of sweet wines, was then taken up and explained by him fully, with a request for early action. No definite results can be reported until the Commissioner of Internal Revenue is heard from, but the prospect is most encouraging to the genuine wine interests. Mr. Pohndorff leaves tomorrow via Louisville and New Orleans for San Francisco, and Mr. Wetmore will start as soon as his bill is perfected.

The plans for the new cathedral in San Francisco have arrived in that city from Chicago. J. J. Eagan, the architect, has forwarded not fewer than forty-seven drawings, every detail being worked out. The excavations are already commenced for the great building, which will cost about $250,000, and work upon it will go on uninterruptedly to completion. The church will be the finest on the Pacific Coast, a fact which will surprise no one familiar with Archbishop Riordan's work while in Chicago in his erection of the magnificent church of the south side—St. James of Wabash avenue.

A VERDICT of $75,000 has been rendered in favor of plaintiff in the Perkins-Baldwin breach of promise case, which has been on trial for several weeks in the Superior Court at Los Angeles. The verdict is as it should be and we trust the old reprobate will be compelled to pay every cent of the sum awarded.

The recent cut in railroad rates will now enable a person to travel from San Francisco to New York on a first-class ticket for $65. The price for a limited ticket is $50 and third-class tickets are disposed of at $35.

The second volume of Blaine's book will be issued this week. Blaine says that the rumors that he will immediately begin the preparation of another historical work have no foundation in fact.

LAND COMMISSIONER SPARKS has ruled that County Clerks alone, and not their deputies, can take the proofs of pre-emptors and the final affidavits.

THROUGH official blundering it is likely that the brutal Chinese who murdered the Wickershams, will be allowed to go free.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

The Advocates of Woman's Rights Gathering in the City.

Congressional Proceedings—The Educational Bill—The President's First Card Reception.

[From our Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15, 1886.
Notable advocates of woman suffrage are gathering in the city for their annual convention, which is to be held this week. This is the eighteenth annual time the association has come to Washington to ask for woman's rights and to tell of woman's wrongs directly to Congress. Susan B. Anthony, the pioneer in this movement is here as usual, looking a little older and a little more furrowed by the plough of time each year, but she is still erect, energetic, proud of her work, and as confident of final success as she was forty years ago.

Representative women are also here from New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Indiana, Missouri, Nebraska, Kentucky, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and other States. They report that twelve States have granted school suffrage to women, and municipal suffrage is being advocated and worked for. The delegates to the convention will be given a hearing while here by the Senate committee on woman suffrage. It is composed of Senators Blair, Palmer, Chace and Bowen. This committee has sent to the United States Senate a report recommending the submission to the Legislatures of the States for ratification a 16th amendment to the Constitution, prohibiting disfranchisement on account of sex. They have no expectation of getting the amendment from this Congress, nor from the next, but they say they will get the matter discussed and the more it is discussed the more popular it becomes. They claim there are twenty-six Senators who favor giving the ballot to women. Among these are Senator Stanford, the Pacific Coast millionaire, President pro tem of the Senate, Sherman, and Senators Conger, Hoar and Blair, who may be called the professional Senatorial champions of women.

As to Congressional proceedings this week there will be little that is new and much of the old. The Senate will discuss the great education bill, and the House will talk again about the relief of Fitz John Porter. The Senate exhausted the subject of education last Congress, and the House of Representatives has exhausted the Porter business during every Congress for nearly twenty years. Nothing has occurred to change the opinions of the friends of either measure, and it is not likely that the opponents of either have discovered anything to modify their objections. Senator Morgan of Alabama is one of the bitterest opponents of the educational bill, and has argued at length the Constitutional and legal phases of the question. He holds that the measure is one to create offices and elaborate the machinery of the Government. "If from the $3,630,000 people in the United States," said he, "were to be deducted all the dead beats, dead heads and non-producers, there would be about 20,000,000 people left who would really have to pay the taxes to carry out the provisions of this bill." If United States Senators were men who plowed fields or worked smithies, and paid taxes out of the sweat of their brows, Mr. Morgan could have more respect for them when voting away the money of one man to educate the children of another. He thought this plan for education simply meant pulling down the man who got up by his own exertions in order to put up a drunken loafer who would not exert himself.

The President's first card reception of the winter was given last Friday in honor of the Diplomatic Corps, and was one of the most brilliant affairs ever held at the White House. The showy court costumes of the Diplomats, and the full uniforms of the Army and Navy officers mingled with the elaborate costumes worn by the ladies made the scene in the great east room strikingly gorgeous.

Both Houses of Congress, judicial circles, and officials in Washington who hold commissions from the President were also invited to meet the foreigners. The latter being the guests proper of the evening, they received formal invitations, while the others were expected to attend upon what is called an anonymous announcement in the newspapers. This kind of Jeffersonian simplicity was not well received by all classes concerned, and it was noticed that the Senators were few and far between in the throng. In ancient times, before the days of engraved cards, it was the custom to have Presidential receptions announced officially to both Houses of Congress. About the time for the reception to begin the rain settled into a vigorous down pour, and compelled a carriage levee. An hour later the line of carriages, awaiting their turn to deposit their occupants on the White House portico, reached from the Mansion down the east drive to Pennsylvania avenue, along the avenue to Fifteenth street, stretched in front of Willard's hotel, and up Fourteenth as far as F street.

Fred. Douglass, the Recorder of Deeds for the District of Columbia, came with his white wife when the reception was about half over. They attracted more general attention and comment probably than any other couple present.

Death on the Rail.

An accident occurred on the North Pacific Coast Railroad, between San Rafael and Sausalito, last Sunday, whereby the engineer, Wm. Lucas, lost his life. The train left the latter station with about 100 passengers aboard, and when two miles from Sausalito the engine and tender leaped the track, breaking the coupling and shooting off to the right down into the marsh. Lucas reversed the lever and instantly put on the air brakes. At the same moment the engine shot up into the air a few feet, and as the coupling attached to the train parted, dashed off to the left and down toward the bay a few feet distant. In a flash it swerved about and crashed over on its right side, the cab lying on its right side in the water. Fireman Stocker was flung up into the air, and landed out in the bay a short distance from shore. A passenger gazing out of a window beheld Lucas sitting at his post as the iron monster toppled over. Both tender and engine cleared the track, and the passenger coaches following dashed along on the rails and were brought to a stop about 150 yards further by brakeman Frank Boothby. The majority of passengers were not aware that an accident had occurred until they saw the wrecked engine and tender. As the horrified passengers and train hands rushed back to the wreck an immense volume of steam and smoke ascended from the engine, and simultaneously the whistle began to send forth a continuous shriek. Fireman Stocker limped out of the bay as the party reached the engine, but slightly injured, but the brave engineer was found inside the overturned cab scalded to death by the escaping steam.

Wednesday afternoon an adventuresome crew while perambulating our streets, deliberately walked on Dr. McMahon's new drug store, on Napa street, during the temporary absence of the proprietor, and entered on a tour of inspection, walking about the place with the confidence of a druggist's clerk and finally bringing up behind the counter, the while chewing her cud with the utmost unconcern. Here she remained until "shooed" out by Clue's clerk, who did not evince the least cowardice as he kept well in the rear and performed the "shoo" act.
Those ladies who attended the entertainment of Clay Literary Society on Monday evening are informed that by calling at this office they will be presented with the beautiful song entitled, "The Empty Chair," composed and published by Mr. Josh Davis. It was Mr. Davis' intention to present the song to every lady present at the entertainment, but slight misunderstanding prevented him from doing so. In order, however, to make his promise good he has forwarded to this office a limited number of sheets containing the words and music of this new and pathetic ballad, which will be given away to those entitled to the

A GRAND SUCCESS.

The Entertainment and Social Hop of Clay Literary Society.

Attended by the Largest Gathering of People Ever Assembled in Union Hall.

The fourth entertainment and social hop of Clay Literary Society has come and gone, and its members who took an active working part in it can now rest from their labors with the satisfaction of knowing that their endeavors have been crowned with success. On Monday evening last there congregated at Union Hall one of the largest and most fashionable audiences that has ever come together in Sonoma, every chair in the large and spacious hall being filled before eight o'clock. At that hour the Sonoma Brass Band, whose members had kindly volunteered to render a few selections, favored the audience with an overture which was played in excellent style.
The next number on the programme was an instrumental duet by the Misses Eloise Pauli and Gabrielle Aguilon, which was well rendered in an easy and graceful manner on the pianoforte and warmly applauded.
Mr. Josh Davis, the "Excelsior Comic Vocalist" of San Francisco, followed with a humorous selection entitled, "Come Down and Open the Door, Love," which he sang in a style that completely captivated the audience. Mr. Davis had just received the song from London and decided to sing it for the first time in Sonoma and let our people enjoy the distinction of being the first to hear on this side of the Atlantic what is to-day one of the most popular songs in England and which is destined to become all the rage in this country. At its conclusion the applause that followed fairly shook the building. He responded to the encore with a comic selection which was rendered in his usual artistic style.
Mrs. J. P. Weems, who had kindly volunteered, then followed with a sentimental vocal solo entitled, "Who Will Buy My Roses Red," and received a rousing encore, which she acknowledged by singing "Coming Thro' the Rye." Mrs. Weems is a singer of rare ability and she never fails to enrapture her listeners. Her talent as a singer, together with the fact that she always stands ready and willing to volunteer her services for any worthy object, has made the lady deservedly popular in our midst, and it might not be out of place to here suggest that she be given a benefit. This would be a substantial way for our people to show their appreciation of her many good qualities and we hope our suggestion will be acted upon.
The next number, a recitation by Miss Emma Hope, entitled "Parsimonion," was rendered in a style that impressed the audience at once. Miss Hope is one of the most talented young ladies of Sonoma and on this, as on all former occasions, she acquitted herself admirably. The young lady is an eloquent and no mean order and the people of Sonoma feel justly proud of her as was amply testified by the applause she received.
The sixth and next number was an overture by the Sonoma Brass Band.
The seventh number was a song by Mr. Josh Davis entitled, "Another Row in the House," which brought down the house. In response to repeated encores he sang "All a Matter of Taste," "Laughing Joe," and "Bill of Fare."
The eighth number was the laughable farce in one act, entitled, "The Limerick Boy," with the following cast:
Paddy Miles.....Mr. J. A. Small
Dr. Costello.....Mr. J. J. West
Henry (his son).....Mr. Ed. Topp
John (his brother).....Mr. Charles Fontana
Mrs. Eliza.....Mrs. Thomas Glynn
Miss Eliza.....Miss Grace Johnson
Jane (her daughter).....Miss Rose Wilson
The taking part in this piece were badly handicapped owing to a lack of stage room, the necessary scenery and the short time which was allotted them to study up their respective parts. However, notwithstanding these drawbacks the play passed off very well, and much merriment was caused by the laughable situations with which the play abounded.
The next and last number was the recitation of the beautiful poem entitled, "Only a Rose," which was rendered with pathos by Mr. Josh Davis, who held the audience enraptured during its rendition.
This number ending the literary exercises, Mrs. H. H. Granice, the President of the society, then came forward and dismissed the audience in a neat speech and announced that a social hop would follow and invited all who so desired to remain and participate. About 75 couples availed themselves of the invitation and Girardi's String Band, which had been engaged expressly for this part of the evening's entertainment, struck up a waltz and many couples were soon lost in its mazes.
The floor was under the excellent management of Mr. Thomas Glynn, than whom no one ever filled the bill more satisfactorily. No better proof of this is wanting when we state that on several occasions when the dance was a "square" every lady in the room was on the floor.
Dancing was kept up till 4 o'clock in the morning, after which, all dispersed to their respective homes, and thus ended one of the most successful entertainments and hops yet given by Clay Literary Society.

Came Home to Die.

John Lewis, a young gentleman well and favorably known to everybody in the Sonoma Valley, died at the residence of his mother, in this place, last Sunday night. Deceased had been in poor health for the past two years, and last Fall, by advice of his physician, he decided to remove to Arizona, hoping by the change to regain his lost health. Accompanied by his devoted wife he made the tiresome journey, and arriving at his destination appeared for a time to improve, but that fell destroyer, consumption had fastened its hold on him too firmly to be checked by a change of climate, and after an absence of several months he started on his return journey and reached the old family residence in time to summon his relatives to his bedside and bid them a last adieu, and on Sunday he breathed his last in the house where he first saw the light of day thirty-five years ago. Deceased leaves a wife, an aged mother, two sisters and two brothers, County Assessor Lewis being one of the latter, and a host of friends, who were present to witness the last sad rites performed at the grave on the Tuesday following his demise.

The Steam Laundry.

Work on our steam laundry is being rapidly pushed to completion, and the promise of the proprietors that it will be in running order by the first of March will, we believe, be fulfilled. In the meantime we have noticed that the clothes-lines of white-washer-women have never been so full or their owners more busy. We trust the new steam laundry will be able to give steady and remunerative work to our own white citizens. There can be no doubt of its success if all who have their washing done outside of their own families will patronize it. This, however, should not and will not interfere with the washer-women of our city engaged in business on their own account. Every woman engaged in washing supports a family and they should have our first consideration, after that the steam laundry.

Trees in the Vineyard.

[Gustav Eisen in Fresno Republican.]
In Italy and Spain the vineyards are generally also used as olive plantations. The trees are set in alternate rows with the vines. This practice should be imitated in our warmer counties, where fermentation of the wine grapes proves in any way difficult. It is especially the olive tree that is used for this purpose. The grapes grown in the shade of the olive trees are less exposed to the sun, and accordingly less sweet, and in their fermentation less ethers are developed and a lighter and less heady wine is in every way gained. Even the training of the vines on trees, while not practicable, would certainly contribute to the production of a light and pleasant wine. Of course this does not refer to raisin grapes, as here the opposite process should be used, as the lower the vines, the sweeter the grapes.

An Illustration.

[St. Helena Times, (D.M.)]
Here is a fine illustration of the beauties of "Snivel Service" reform. The postmaster at Soledad, Monterey county, who is and was a Democrat, and sustained Cleveland during the campaign of 1884, was of course overjoyed with the result, as he expected to be continued in office. In the midst of his joyous feelings he wrote a letter to a Republican friend named Simmler, who held a federal judgeship, or something of the sort, in the same county, and offered him sympathy on the occasion of his making retirement from office and expressed regret that the Judge was not politically on the right side of the house, and in the same missive the Soledad Postmaster congratulated himself that he was among the chosen and would of course be retained in office. The result is this: To-day Mr. Everett, the Soledad Postmaster, is out of office, and Mr. Simmler, the Republican Judge, holds his office by virtue of a re-appointment under the present administration.

Excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Texas, by the remarkable recovery of Mr. J. E. Corley, who was so helpless he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he was dying of Consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of Pills and two bottles of the Discovery, he was well and had gained in flesh thirty-six pounds. Trial bottles of this Great Discovery for Consumption free at all Drug Stores.

"No," said the merchant, "I don't advertise now. I used to, but I got completely tired out waiting on customers. Since I stopped that advertisement I have had a continual vacation and been able to discharge one of my clerks."

VALUABLE INVENTION.

Valve Attachment for Wine Casks to Prevent Waste.

T. S. Glaister of this place has been granted letters patent for an improvement in valve attachments for wine casks. The invention consists of a screw stem or spindle by which the valve may be closed and held positively at times. As is well known to wine growers large wine casks are provided with a door in one end or head near its lower portion. In this door is a bung hole which is closed with a plug. When the wine is ready to be drawn off this plug is removed outwardly and in which case several gallons of wine are wasted before the faucet can be inserted in the bung-hole, as the casks which are immense, some of them holding as many as 5,000 gallons, and lying on their sides are from 8 to 9 feet in length and 7 to 8 feet in height, cause a great pressure of liquid and it spurts out with much force, rendering it very difficult to insert the faucet. Sometimes the plug is driven inwardly by the faucet, which method is usually attended without the loss of any wine. But this process, although preventing waste, is open to serious objections—namely, the agitation of the contents of the cask caused by the blows on the same in driving the faucet home and by the indrawing plug. This stirs up the sediment or settlings, and frequently the wine has to be allowed to stand several months longer before it can be drawn off. Mr. Glaister's invention avoids the above difficulties by providing a valve for the bung-hole, which remains nominally closed under the pressure of the liquid and which may be readily opened by the insertion of the faucet. The invention is a valuable one and will, no doubt, commend itself to every owner of a wine cellar in the State.

SANTA ROSA NEWS.

[Daily Democrat.]
A person will meet ten Chinamen idly strolling the streets where you formerly met one. The boycotting is doing its work.

Over $1,000 worth of delinquent tax property was sold from the Court House steps Tuesday. The sale will be continued Wednesday.

M. J. Hatch, a farmer on the Brighton tract, had his right arm badly broken and was otherwise cut and bruised, last Monday, being thrown from his wagon by a runaway team.

There are something over 500 signers already to the anti-Chinese petition, and three of the wards in the city and the outside districts have not been heard from. The various committees are requested to work hard for the cause this week, and report next Sunday.

Rayford Peterson came to town Tuesday with a peculiar spring crop. He had a wagon-load of Chinamen whom he had discharged from his employ, and he will hereafter employ white labor. His brother, Sterling Peterson, intends discharging his coolies Saturday, and says he will import some Mis-sourian white labor.

A gentleman who crossed the Laguna yesterday at the middle bridge, reports that that body of water is literally swarming with carp. They were disporting themselves festively too, great numbers of them leaping out of the water and making a beautiful sight. They are of all sizes, some of them appearing to be two feet long. Mr. Winkler, who was passing, had a pitchfork in his wagon. He thrust it down into the water and brought up a nice fish.

Mr. Caldwell's little boy, about 13 years of age, injured his arm quite seriously while playing around his father's shop Monday afternoon. The little fellow had been playing among the wagons in the yard north of the shop, and while attempting to climb upon the seat of a large dray he fell, the brake-bar catching him in the muscles of the right arm and inflicting a deep and painful wound about three inches long and nearly to the bone.

The Chinese were much alarmed Monday afternoon, on seeing such a formidable military array in honor of Washington's birthday. One of them approached a well-known wag on the subject, and he told the frightened coolie that the company was from San Francisco, detached for special duty in Santa Rosa, and they would remain here for two weeks, and if at the expiration of that time there were any more Chinamen left in our city they would begin to shoot. As a gentleman remarked, you could have hung your hat upon the Mongolian optics.

COUNTY SQUIRES.

The Healdsburg Anti-Chinese League numbers 800 members and they have subscribed $3,000 toward a steam laundry.

Chris Franks of Santa Rosa, has been confirmed by the Senate for the United States Marshalship. The report of J. C. Maynard's appointment was a canard.

The Union Hotel is doing a rushing business. Don't forget that this hotel is becoming more popular every day.

PETALUMA PICKINGS.

[Courier.]
The many friends of F. T. Maynard, the druggist, who was stricken with a slight shock of paralysis recently, will be pleased to hear that he is able to be out again.

At a meeting of the Odd Fellows of Petaluma, last night, it was decided to celebrate their anniversary on April 26th with a parade and exercises at the theatre and a grand ball in the evening.

Last week Cal Ashley sued Wm. Camm for $299.99 damages in Justice Baldwin's court. It will be remembered that Ashley was injured by a falling house near Novato, some time since, and his fight was to prove the incompetency of the foreman of the force moving the house. The jury after being out a short time found a verdict in Camm's favor.

A gentleman who is posted informs us that there are now in Petaluma about 75 stallions of all kinds. Most of them are imported, all thoroughbred and many of them for sale. We think we can beat the entire coast on good stock, especially in trotting and draft horses. We have the biggest horses in the world and some of the fastest trotters in the State.

A. I. Robinson, whose ranch lies about midway in the mountains between Healdsburg and Guerneville, was in town last week. He says stock is doing splendidly in his section, the grass being fine. Sheep wintered well, particularly on ranges which were not overstocked. The ranchers in this neighborhood recently clubbed together for a war on the varmints, which were doing much damage. They killed twenty-five wildcats and fifty-four coons.

Percheron Horses.

To a "Tribune" reporter, Mr. A. S. Chamberlain, who for 40 years has been the proprietor of the "Old Bull's Head Stables," New York City, said: "I keep exchange and sale stables for horses, thousands of which annually come to my stables from all parts of the country. I don't deal on my own account to any extent. The French horses have good feet and stand the pavement better than the Clydesdales, and bring a better price on the market. The Clydesdales are short-ribbed, slim waisted and lack action. Comparatively few of them are now brought to this market. The demand is largely for French horses. I would advise the farmers and breeders, who are breeding horses to sell on the New York market, to breed from French horses in preference to all others."—Chicago Tribune.
Percheron stallions of the finest quality and with choicest pedigrees, registered in the Percheron Stud Book of France, are annually imported in immense numbers by M. W. Dunham, "Oaklawn Farm," Wayne, Illinois. Within the past two years 1,000 have been imported and collected at this establishment.

Miscellaneous Escape.

W. W. Reed, druggist, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "One of my customers, Mrs. Louisa Pike, Ber-tonia, Randolph Co., Ind., was a long sufferer with Consumption, and was given up to die by her physicians. She heard of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and began buying it of me. In six months' time she walked to this city, a distance of six miles, and is now so much improved she has quit using it. She feels she owes her life to it. Free trial bottles at all Drug Stores."

THE RECONSIDERED VERDICT.

Some sixty autumns ago the case was tried at Chester, before a judge of great ability and eminence, and a jury whose intelligence—but you shall hear. In the preceding spring—April, I think, was the month—there had been a bad case of burglary at a farm house in Cheshire. Three men had tied down and gagged the farmer and his two maid servants, and had rifled the house at their leisure. The police were told of the matter, and pretty accurate descriptions were given of the men. There were two other clues. In the struggle one of the men had lost a button from his coat, which button he had left behind. Also the same man had had his face so severely scratched by one of the maids that the girl said "she was sure she had left her mark upon him."

Weeks passed without any arrest being made, and people began to forget the burglary, until one day a man was taken up at Liverpool on suspicion of being concerned in quite a different matter. He had with him a bundle containing some of the plunder of the farm house. More of the plunder was found at his lodgings. His face bore traces of scratching; and, to clinch the matter, his coat wanted a button, and the buttons on it corresponded exactly with that picked up at the scene of the burglary. His defence was very flimsy. "He knew nothing about the burglary, but, had bought the coat and things very cheap off a man in the street." "Did he know the man?" "No, never saw him before, or since." "How about the scratches?" "Well, he was a sailor, and too much accustomed to big burrs to take any notice of scratches." Of course, he was committed for trial, and the trial, as I said, came on at Chester.

It excited a great deal of interest, and the court was crowded, an invalid staying at the principal inn so far shaking off a touch of tropical fever as to send in his card to the judge, and ask for a place to him the bar. And yet, after all, there was very little to be said. The circumstantial testimony above-mentioned was overwhelming, and, in addition to that, farmer and servants with one accord swore to the identity of the prisoner with the burglar. There was no defence; the jury found a verdict of "guilty" without leaving the box; and as burglary was a hanging matter in those days, it merely remained to pass sentence of death. Only a formula between him and judgement.

"Prisoner at the bar, you have heard the verdict of the jury? Have you anything to say by way of sentence of death should not be passed upon you?" Then the prisoner spoke for the first time. Just brushing his eyes with the cuff of his coat he began—

"Well, cap'n, it's hard to be hung for nothin', but I can see this is yard-arm business. I know no more of this 'ere burglary nor a babbly; but these witnesses ha'n't told no lies, I s'pose. And what can I say agin 'em? When this thing came off—April didn't they say—I was fightin' the slavers on the gold coast. But you've got no call to believe that, and so there's an end to it."

There was something in the man's manner that impressed the judge; so he said, not unkindly, "But suppy, prisoner, if your story is true, you must have friends and comrades with whom you could have communicated. If you had thought they could do you good, you would have done this. It is too late now."

"You're right, cap'n, it's too late. But it's all very well to say 'let 'em know' when a man's locked up in jail, and can't read nor write, and don't know where they are. They may be in America, they may be at the Cape, and how could I let 'em know—leastways, not in time? No, it's no use, and you'd better order me to be run up to the yard-arm at once."

"But," urged the judge, "the Court has no wish to hang a man who may be innocent. Is there no one who could speak for you?" The prisoner looked in a hopeless sort of way round the court. "No," he began; but just then his eye lighted on the stranger from the inn. "Yes," he added, pointing to him, "there is a gentleman who might speak for me if he would."

The judge turned round. "Do you know the prisoner?" he asked. "No, my lord," was the reply. "I never saw him before in my life."

"Well, Captain Sharpe," said the prisoner, "if you put the rope round my neck I give in. Go on, my lord."

"Stay," said the judge. "Is your name Captain Sharpe?"

"Yes, my lord." And Captain Sharpe, R. N., was on the card he had sent in.

Well, the prisoner seems to recognize you, so I will ask you to step into the witness box and be sworn, that he may ask you questions.

The captain went into the box, and the following dialogue ensued: "Are you Captain Sharpe of His Majesty's ship Vulture?"

"Yes."

"Were you in command of her on the slave coast this spring?"

"I was."

"And was't it one of the crew?"

"Most certainly not."

"But cap'n don't you remember the big alaver, that gave you all the trouble, that you had on board?"

"Yes."

"And you yourself led the boarders?"

"Oh yes; but all that is nothing—you may easily have heard or read all about that."

"Well, but cap'n, once more, don't you remember the big nigger that was almost cutting you down?"

"Don't you remember the man who stood between you and death, and what he got for it? Don't you remember that?"—and, brushing back his hair, the prisoner showed a great scar down one side of his head.

The whole court looked on breathless, as the captain stared at the scar and at the man till his eyes seemed starting from his head.

At length, as if in a dream, the captain muttered to himself,

"Good God, is it possible?"

Then slowly and deliberately he got out of the witness-box and, clambered into the dock, where he seized the prisoner's hand, and turning to the judge, said "My lord, this was the best man in my crew, and he saved my life. He is so changed by illness and imprisonment that I could not recognize him. But there is no mistake now. If you hang the old bo'sun of the Vulture, you must hang the captain with him."

Then followed a scene rarely witnessed in a court of justice. "Amid cheers and sobs that no one cared to suppress, the judge briefly directed the jury to reconsider their verdict, which they at once did, finding a unanimous 'Not guilty.' The prisoner was discharged, and left the dock arm in arm with the captain. They were hurried into a triumphal procession, and after a sumptuous lunch, they posted off together to London.

As they reached the ancient town, Captain Sharpe might have been heard addressing his companion somewhat as follows: "Well, old pal, we pulled through that business pretty well, I think. But it was a near go. That was a good notion of Wiley Bob's to wait for the verdict before moving. We could never have touched that evidence."

"Yes," replied the innocent and long-suffering boatswain of the Vulture, "and if you had cottoned to me a minute too soon, the old beak would have been fly to the trick. Lord, I was fit to burst when the old boy began to cry?"

From which brief dialogue we gather that 'Captain Sharpe' might have known more of the burglary than of the Vulture.

Nothing more was ever heard of either of them. Such is the story of 'The Reconsidered Verdict.'

SORE THROAT.—Every one has a cure for sore throat, but simple remedies appear to be most effectual. Salt and water is used by many as a gargle, but a little alum and honey dissolved in sage tea is better. An application of cloths wrung out of hot water and applied to the neck, changing as often as they begin to cool, has the most potency for removing inflammation of anything we ever tried. It should be kept up for a number of hours; during the evening is the usually most convenient time for applying this remedy.

BARLEY WATER is very useful to keep up the strength of a patient: A cupful of barley in two quarts of water, allowed to boil two hours. About an hour after it is on the fire, add a dozen stoned raisins; strain before serving. If I wish a stimulant, I put in the glass or cup in which I serve it a teaspoonful of brandy or sherry wine. It ought to be cooked in a porcelain-lined vessel or it is apt to discolor.

A GREAT many editors who write long articles on silver do not possess enough of it to plug a key hole.

The first ingredient in conversation is truth, the next good sense, the third good humor and the fourth wit.

Why do school boys having their ears boxed resemble captured house-breakers? Because they are handcuffed.

As we grow in years and experience, we become more tolerant, for it is rare to see a fault we have not ourselves committed.

A man's character is like his shadow, which sometimes follows and sometimes precedes him, and which is occasionally longer, occasionally shorter than he is.

Even in the fiercest uproar of our stormy passions, conscience, though in her softest whispers, gives to the supremacy of rectitude the voice of an undying testimony.

Not Symptoms, but the Disease. It would seem to be a truth appreciable by all and especially by professors of the healing art, that to remove the disease, not to alleviate its symptoms, should be the chief aim of medication. Yet in how many instances do we see this? The reason that Huffer's Kidney Pills is successful in many cases, without which remedies previously tried were inadequate to cope, is attributable to the fact that it is a medicine which reaches and removes the causes of the various maladies to which it is adapted. Indigestion, fever and ague, liver complaint, gout, rheumatism, disordered bowels, urinary affection and other maladies are not palliated merely, but rooted out by it. It goes to the fountain head, it is really, not nominally, a radical remedy, and it endows the system with an amount of vigor which is its best protection against disease.
